

Q. Is Clarence living today?

A. No, he isn't living and neither is his wife. They are buried at Charleston Cemetery, West Virginia. He owned a place in Charleston.

Q. Ridgely B. Hilleary, this is John's son?

A. No. Yes. He is a son.

Q. John's son?

A. Yes.

Q. Ridgely B. Hilleary, did he marry?

A. Yes, and they are both dead. His wife and he are both dead.

Q. How long ago would that be approximately?

A. Oh, my goodness me.

Q. Is it more than a year ago?

A. Oh, yes, years ago. Quite a number of years ago.

Q. That answers my question. Do you know where they lived when they died, city and state?

A. Ridgely lived in Indianapolis. I think he lived in Indianapolis.

Q. Indianapolis, Indiana?

A. I think so. I think he was living there.

Q. Have you found something there? I didn't want to interrupt you. Now Richard W. Hilleary.

A. Well, Richard W. Hilleary - -

Q. The deed recites Richard W. Hilleary. I don't know whether the W stands for Worthington or not.
